Arrhythmia

By Hailey Leithauser

The heart of a bear is a cloud-shuttered mountain. The heart of a mountain's a kiln.

The white heart of a moth has nineteen white chambers. The heart of a swan is a swan.

The heart of a wasp is a prick of plush.

The heart of a skunk is a mink. The heart of an owl is part blood and part chalice.

The fey mouse heart rides a dawdy dust-cart.

The heart of a kestrel hides a house wren at nest. The heart of lark is a czar. The heart of a scorpion is swidden and spark. The heart of a shark is a gear.

Listen and tell, thrums the grave heart of humans.

Listen well love, for it's pitch dark down here.

Source: Poetry (October 2015)