Filling Station

By Elizabeth Bishop

Oh, but it is dirty!
—this little filling station,
oil-soaked, oil-permeated to a disturbing, over-all black translucency.
Be careful with that match!

Father wears a dirty,
oil-soaked monkey suit
that cuts him under the arms,
and several quick and saucy and greasy sons assist him
all quite thoroughly dirty.

Do they live in the station?
It has a cement porch
behind the pumps, and on it a set of crushed and grease-impregnated wickerwork;
on the wicker sofa
a dirty dog, quite comfy.

Some comic books provide the only note of color—of certain color. They lie upon a big dim doily
draping a taboret (part of the set), beside a big hirsute begonia.

Why the extraneous plant?
Why the taboret?
Why, oh why, the doily?
(Embroidered in daisy stitch with marguerites, I think, and heavy with gray crochet.)

Somebody embroidered the doily.
Somebody waters the plant, or oils it, maybe. Somebody arranges the rows of cans
so that they softly say: ESSO—SO—SO—SO
to high-strung automobiles.
Somebody loves us all.
