Prints

By Joseph Bruchac

Seeing photos
  of ancestors
  a century past

is like looking at your own
  fingerprints—

circles
  and lines
  you can’t recognize

until someone else
  with a stranger’s eye
  looks close and says
  that’s you.

Source: Sing: Poetry form the Indigenous Americas (University of Arizona Press, 2011)