

David Dominguez

Poet David Dominguez earned a BA in comparative literature from the University of California at Irvine and an MFA in creative writing from the University of Arizona. Dominguez is the co-founder and editor of The Packinghouse Review. He teaches at Reedley College in Reedley, California. A resident of California's Central Valley, Dominguez writes poetry that reflects life in the area, often focusing on work and family history.